HOROSCOPE.

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

Sunday, September 3, 1916.

Evil and good combine in this day's influences, according to astrology. Early in the morning Saturn and Uranus are adverse, but later Venus rules kindly.

It is a time for routine thought as well as action, as plans made under this configuration are apt to be disappointing.

The rule is not good for the aged or for those who desire the power of concentration.

Undue depression, fear, gloom and dissatisfaction are supposed to breed under this rule of the stars, which often encourages hasty action and even suicides.

One should not sell, buy or invest while this rule prevails. Have no dealings with landlords, builders or mines.

There is a belief that new undertakings begun during this configuration will progress far enough to cause regret and even losses.

Strikes in mines or excavations are probable, the seers predict. Labor troubles of all sorts will become serious in the next few weeks. Bloodshed and great property loss are indicated for this month.

There is a rule said to stimulate criticism of public institutions. Libel suits again are prognosticated.

Congress has a forecast of change in personnel which will be surprising. Defeats in unexpected districts are indicated.

Woman suffrage comes under a government of the stars which is likely to produce extraordinarily good results through indirect influences connected with the national campaign.

Uranus gives warning of friends who are not trustworthy. The stars foreshadow much treachery among persons hitherto most honorable.

Forgery is one of the crimes likely to be prevalent in the next few months.

There is a forecast of a national alarm concerning vice and diseases produced by unclean living. A London seer predicts shocking revelations.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not travel or remove in the next year. They should be careful of accident or injury.

Children born on this day may be inclined to be reckless and venturesome. These subjects of Virgo are likely to be quick tempered, but careful and likely to act with forethought.

Salient Points in President Wilson's Speech of Acceptance

"No nation can any longer remain neutral as against any wilful disturbance of the peace of the world."

"The nations of the world must unite in joint guarantees that whatever is done to disturb the whole world's life must first be tested in the court of the whole world's opinion before it is attempted."

"The nation that violates (America's) essential rights must expect to be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance."

"The Republican party is just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age. It does not know the way and it does not wish new conditions."

"We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the Progressive party as well as our own; for we also are progressives."

"The Republican party was put out of power because of failure, practical failure and moral failure; because it had served special interests and not the country at large."

"I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the Democratic party to continue in control of the government."

Party Has Done Full Duty, Wilson Declares in Speech

Democrats called into power to do? What things had long waited to be done, and how did the Democrats do them?

Republican Failures.

The Republican party was put out of power because of failure, practical failure and moral failure; because it had served special interests and not the country at large. Because, under the leadership of its preferred and established guides, of those who still make its choices, it had lost touch with the thoughts and the needs of the nation and was living in a past age and under a fixed illusion, the illusion of greatness.

It had framed tariff laws based upon a fear of foreign trade, a fundamental doubt as to American skill, enterprise and capacity and a very tender regard for the profitable privileges of those who had gained control of domestic markets and domestic credits; and yet had enacted anti-trust laws which hampered the very things they meant to foster, which were kept and ineffectual, and in part unintelligible. It had permitted the country throughout the long period of its control to stagger from one financial crisis to another under the operation of a national banking law of its own framing which made stringency and panic certain and a commodity of the larger business and domestic credits; and yet had enacted anti-trust laws which hampered the very things they meant to foster, which were kept and ineffectual, and in part unintelligible.

Children Emancipated.

We have effected the emancipation of the children of the country by releasing them from harmful labor. We have instituted a system of national aid in the building of highroads such as the country has been feeling after for a century. We have sought to equalize taxation by means of an equitable income tax. We have taken the steps that have been taken to enter Mexico to open up the resources of Alaska. We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire people. We have taken the steps that have been taken to enter Mexico to open up the resources of Alaska. We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire people.

Have Been Neutral.

We have been neutral not only because this was the fixed and traditional policy of the United States to stand aloof from the politics of Europe and because we had no part either of action or of policy in the influence which brought on the present war, but also because it was manifestly our duty to prevent, if it were possible, the indefinite extension of the fires of hate and decision kindled by that terrible conflict and seek to serve mankind by reserving our strength and our resources for the anxious and difficult days of restoration and healing which must follow when peace will have to build its house anew.

Democratic Achievement.

So things stood when the Democratic party came into power. How do they stand now? Alike in the domestic field and in the wide field of commerce of the world, American business and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before.

The tariff has been revised, not on the principle of repelling foreign trade, but upon the principle of encouraging it, upon something like a footing of equality with our own in respect of the terms of competition, and a tariff board has been created whose function it will be to keep the relations of American with foreign business and industry under constant observation, for the guidance alike of our business men and of our Congress. American energies are now directed toward the markets of the world.

Elastic Currency.

By the Federal Reserve Act the supply of currency at the disposal of active business has been rendered elastic, taking the place, not from a fixed body of investment securities, but from the liquid assets of daily trade; and these assets are assessed and accepted, not by distant groups of bankers in control of unavailable reserves, but by bankers at the money centers of local exchange who are in touch with local conditions everywhere.

No Favor to Hypnotists.

The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men amongst us who were born under foreign flags injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the shame of divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was condemned and forgotten. It is part of the business of this year of reckoning and settlement to speak plainly and act with unmistakable purpose in rebuke of these things, in order that they may be forever hereafter impossible. I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

the right to expect to be dealt with exactly as the people of big and powerful States would be. We have acted upon that principle in dealing with the people of Mexico.

Our recent pursuit of bandits into Mexican territory was no violation of that principle. We ventured to enter Mexican territory only because there were no military forces in Mexico that could protect our border from hostile attack and our own people from violence, and we have committed there no single act of hostility or interference with the sovereignty of the Republic of Mexico herself. It was a plain case of the violation of our own sovereignty which could not wait to be vindicated by damages and for which there was no other remedy. The authorities of Mexico were powerless to prevent it.

Mexican Relations.

Many serious wrongs against the property, many irreparable wrongs against the persons, of Americans have been committed within the territory of Mexico herself during this confused revolution, wrongs which could not be effectively checked so long as we had no constituted power in Mexico which was in a position to check them. We could not act directly in that matter ourselves without denying Mexicans the right to any revolution at all which disturbed us and making the emancipation of her own people await our own interest and convenience.

So long as the power of recognition rests with me the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence. No permanency can be given the affairs of any republic by a title based upon intrigue and assassination.

Again Vow a Policy.

I declared that to be the policy of this administration within three weeks after I assumed the Presidency. I here again vow it. I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever. Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object.

More is involved than the immediate destinies of Mexico and the relations of the United States with a distressed and distracted people. All America looks on. Test is now being made of us whether we are sincere lovers of popular liberty or not and are indeed to be trusted to respect national sovereignty among our weaker neighbors. We have undertaken these many years to play big brother to the republics of this hemisphere. This is the day of our test whether we mean, or have ever meant, to play that part for our own benefit wholly or also for theirs. Upon the outcome of that test (its outcome in their minds, not in ours) depends every relationship of the United States with Latin America, whether in politics or in commerce and enterprise.

Besides contributing our ungrudging moral and practical support to the establishment of peace throughout the world we must actively and intelligently prepare ourselves to do our full service in the trade and industry which are to sustain and develop the life of the nation in the days to come.

Must Aid Laborer.

We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism. We are to play a leading part in the world drama, whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in.

We must hearten and quicken the spirit and efficiency of labor throughout our whole industrial system by everywhere and in all occupations doing justice to the laborer, not only by paying a living wage, but also by making all the conditions that surround labor what they ought to be. And we must do more than justice. We must safeguard life and promote health and safety in every occupation in which they are threatened or imperiled. That is more than justice, and better, because it is humanity and economy.

We must co-ordinate the railway systems of the country for national use, and must facilitate and promote their development with a view to that co-ordination, and to their better adaptation as a whole to the life and trade and defense of the nation. The life and industry of the country can be free and unhampered only if these arteries are open, efficient and complete.

Thus shall we stand ready to meet the future as circumstance and international policy affect their unfolding, whether the changes come slowly or come fast and without preface.

I have not spoken explicitly, gentlemen, of the platform adopted at St. Louis; but it has been implicit in all that I have said. I have sought to interpret its spirit and meaning. The people of the United States need to be assured now that that platform is a definite pledge, a practical program. We have proved to them that our promises are made to be kept.

Notes of Camp Ordway

By WATSON DAVIS.

The infantry has returned the fire of the artillery. Here is the poetical answer to the poem, entitled "The Men With the Bright Red Hat Cores," which was composed by Clerk Charles W. Smith, of Battery A, and which recently was published in these columns. Mess Sergeant "Big Jim" Goddard, of Company G, is the author of the following: A word of thanks from the infantry.

To the men of Battery A
For the lines they wrote to get our goat
In the Herald the other day
Thanks for the praise for the way we fought
In the battle you saw in your dream
And the way we fell back all out of breath
While your shot and shells did scream
Or were the guns just loaded with beans
To frighten the mosquitoes, the pests
From Camp Ordway's beautiful grove!

No hard feelings. Boys of the Red Hat Cores.
Is meant by the Boys of the Blue.
For we were bitten long ago
By the same bug that's biting you.
Two long months we've waited in vain
For the call to fight with you
And to show the Mexicans and the world
What American soldiers do.
But "Patience," say our leaders
And like Job we have had to wait
So keep on with your dreaming, boys
And load up with beans again.

One of the soldiers picked up the receiver of a Y. M. C. A. tent telephone the other day and Central asked him: "Do you want to know what time it is again?" He made an investigation and he discovered that Musclem Smith, of Company C, had been asking Central the time so that he could blow the camp bugle calls on the dot. Officers are seriously considering furnishing Central with a complete list of the daily bugle calls.

If "boots and saddles" was sounded in a hurry, the officers would be in an awful fix. Two hooks, resembling boat hooks, are necessary to draw on army boots. They engage two cloth loops on the boot legs, which fit too tightly around the leg to permit fingers to grasp loops, and this is the only way in which the boots can be drawn on. According to Lieut. Earl Smithson, adjutant of the first battalion, all would be lost without those two hooks.
